

Good relations with the neighbours: Smurfit Kappa Nettingsdorfer invited the Ansfelden City Council to a plant tour and talks

Exchange of views between representatives of politics and economy

(Nettingsdorf, 20 May 2008) Smurfit Kappa Nettingsdorfer, Austria's leading manufacturer of paper for corrugated board production, regularly invites representatives of the City of Ansfelden to its site.

The objective of this established and constructive exchange of views, this year on Monday evening, 19 May 2008, is to keep up the good neighbourly relations. After the guests had been welcomed by CEO Dr. Ferdinand Fuhrmann, Mill Manager Dipl.-Ing. Reinhard Reiter outlined what has been accomplished so far. He not only presented the current economic development of the company, but also detailed future investments as well as current and future environmental actions.

Constructive cooperation

Vice Mayor Karl Pichler considers the powerful and successful company with its 360 employees to be one of the largest industrial sites in his municipality and in the region. Around one third of the people working at Smurfit Kappa Nettingsdorfer live in Ansfelden.

The representatives of both the City and the company confirmed their mutual support in joint projects.

The exchange of views and experiences with a focus on the good cooperation was followed by a tour through the plant.

On 26th May, the company will invite neighbours and people living in its vicinity to a visit and discussion at the site.
